COURSE LEVEL STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOME(S) Supported by this course:
1. generate a piece of art utilizing a live model to create an anatomically accurate portrait reflecting an awareness of likeness and personality of the model.
2. demonstrate an ability to understand, evaluate, interpret, and appreciate human creations in the visual arts.
3. demonstrate life-long learning strategies that are based on on-going self-assessment, education, and acceptance of personal responsibility.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:
1. build on and improve drawing skills with regard to the human form. (proportion, composition, materials).
2. use the model as a point of departure for personal growth and subjective interpretation using assigned and chosen projects (introducing environment, other media, 3D, lighting).
3. accurately depict the human bone and muscle structure with advanced investigation if the live model.
4. increase awareness in portraying the human form in full form, portrait (persona), extreme lighting, extreme foreshortened form, by utilizing both technical (materials) and aesthetic (subjective/emotional) skills.
5. experiment with and increase skill levels with a varied selection of materials and drawing surfaces in order to personalize and achieve individualized life drawing goals.
6. view and discuss the figurative drawings of past masters and contemporary artists by viewing slides and field trips.

COURSE CONTENT:

LECTURE CONTENT:

Art 119-A. See attached for Art 119-B Course Scope and Content.
The student will:
-develop advanced skills in figure proportion, body movement, foreshortening, persona, representation and abstraction of the human form by drawing from the live model.
-develop advanced skills in depiction of specific and random body elements (portrait, full form, special problems with features, self portraits) with individual help from the instructor.
-develop a rapport with both technical and aesthetic application of the art elements by personal and instructional analysis of spontaneous and extended figurative drawing.
-develop and apply applicable drawing skills and visual skills by the study and discussion of historical figurative information. (field trips, slides, books, comparisons)
-compile a portfolio of drawings that demonstrate competence in drawing the human figure in both studio and personalized live drawings.
-demonstrate his/her competence with figurative drawing by completing a final project that reflects advanced skill levels in both technical and aesthetic areas.

The "B class of Art 119 A-B, Life Drawing II, is for the art major who wants to prepare a high level portfolio of drawings to present to prospective employers, or to be used for admission into private art colleges or the California State and University art programs. The competition for admission to upper division studio classes requires demonstration of high skill levels and artistic achievement and a professionally present art portfolio.
